

April 28, 2013 - Article to be updated when a new revision is released). Create a task schedule that runs the computer at 2 am every day. Apr 13, 2013 Hi..please save my life... I have a windows 2012 server x64 on on a HP Gen9 Pro L360ee8c server today. I want to run in low power mode when I'm not using it. I want it to shutdown when I shut down Windows as well as when I go to sleep. Any solutions? A: You can use GPO (Group Policy Objects) to turn on and off a specific user or group based on a certain time. I would suggest using a command line tool called gpedit.msc to create a GPO and turn it on. That will help you to control the settings on a computer level. Start gpedit.msc Navigate to the Policies node. Create a new GPO. Navigate to the Computer Configuration node and create a new GPO. Navigate to the Software Settings node. Select the Power Policy tab. In the Shut down computer when idle section select the "GPO" and click on "Create". On the Shutdown schedule box, choose from two or more option that are available. For daily, weekly, monthly Once you have created the GPO, right click the GPO and attach it to a computer's OU and it's services. Collection of components built with the popular React library.
