This book brings the first detailed, comprehensive and practical look at the design, management and techniques of the activity centre and the role that it can play in any centre. Focusing on how to design, manage and operate the centre, the book takes a holistic approach, examining the role and importance of activity centres in rehabilitating stroke and other disabled people, whilst also covering the emotional and social aspects of the role of the centre as well as the impact of the design on the disabled person. Organised around 7 major themes the book examines the many facets of the activity centre from the initial concept through to the built form, from building and setting up the centre to staff selection, training and support, facility design and on to many other aspects of activity centres. Extensive drawings, case studies and photographs provide a pictorial reference, with the text supported by a wide range of specialist topics and additional material.
